COUNTDOWN TO RENO 18 DAYS

It was just over a year ago that eshuffleboard.com started hosting tournament results from all over the country. It was slow going at first but now most the state pages are populated with results, pictures and stories. Just this week, the "hit" counter turned over to 10,000 unique visitors. That's several hundred dedicated visitors returning sometimes on a daily basis. Pictured to the left are some of the cities and states that visit. I believe that Vancouver, BC was #10,000.

My most dedicated fan, the one I stay up late for, to make sure he has his tournament results to read in the morning, is Dennis Kinsey, the quiet half of the defending Indiana State Championship doubles team of Koontz and Kinsey. He's an early riser and even if it's 5AM when a tournament finishes, I at least post the winners for Dennis before retiring for the day.

It's for Dennis and other people like him that I stay up late, getting results posted as soon as possible after I receive them. Even though I miss sleep, I love doing it and will continue to the best of my abilities.

Over the course of this past year I have met many people through email and in real life. I hope to meet many more when I go to NASC™ 2006 in Reno at the end of the month. You'll be able to figure out who I am after a day or so. I'll be taking pictures, smokin' Kools, walking around with a yellow legal pad asking questions and probably ticking away on my computer over in a corner when I'm not playing. I'm also about 6'1" tall.. average for my family.

"Doc" Slabaugh, Indiana HOF passed away

This past week, George "Doc" Slabaugh passed away. I have a couple more people to talk to and then I will be putting together a few words about Doc.

Report from "Lucky's" coming soon..

I leave you with a few "classic" signs from the walls at Lucky's until I can get the report written.
