Board Talk's closing leaves a void

LAGGING

BY JIM MANDERS

The gigantic thud heard late last week was the news that financial reasons were causing The Board Talk shuffleboard magazine to cease publication with its next edition.

Sad news, indeed, about the monthly publication started by Michigan's George and Donna Wilbur in 1984 and carried on by Champion in 2000 with Tom and Lynda French at the helm as editor-publishers.

Closing Board Talk was obviously a business decision made by Champion that was simplified by basic mathematics. The revenues didn't come close to equalling the expenses and wouldn't even with major price increases and decreased publication dates.

Having been in the newspaper business for the majority of my grown years, I have experienced what happens when expenses overrun revenue. Having to be the first one to the bank on payday and lost jobs were the result of that problem.

There was no joy when I heard the news Friday afternoon and then had it confirmed when someone forwarded me an email from the Frenches on Saturday.

Board Talk's demise shouldn't be taken as a failure on the part of the Frenches or Champion. Circumstances, not their efforts, dictated the final outcome.

So, what does Champion's decision mean to Lagging4s?

Only that there is a pretty good-sized hole in the table shuffleboard communication network. Everyone in shuffleboard doesn't send event notices or tournament results to Lagging4s or the other places where it could be disseminated. It could be difficult to get people in the habit of sending information to new locations.

One of the first phone calls I received about Champion's decision came with a plea: "Please don't let anyone talk you into starting another print publication."

Not to worry. Unless there is a sponsor out there willing to put up the printing and publication costs for a long period of time — like 10 years — I'm not interested in a print publication.

So, it's pretty much business as usual at Lagging4s. I'll continue to accept advertising and donate 25 percent back to shuffleboard through added money to tournaments. Elsewhere on Page 1, there's a story about which tournament was awarded the $200 added money from advertising revenue since last May.

Hopefully, in the future, advertising will increase to the point where I might be able to give that much every month and spread it around the country.

But, that is not a solicitation for advertising.

I will, however, solicit information and your continued assistance.

Lagging4s will print news about league play, tournaments, or anything else with a shuffleboard theme. Please feel free to add to the nearly 500 "Home Boards" that tell you where you can play if you're on the road. There will never be a charge for these services.

The other thing I ask is that you share Lagging4s with your shuffleboard friends. Print out a copy for the place you play or make sure friends without computers get a chance to view the weekly editions.

Not having email doesn't mean you can't get information into the magazine. All you have to do is send it via the Postal Service to: Lagging4s, PO Box 934, Sequim, Wa. 98382. The phone number is 360-670-6299.

Vancouver tourney gets added bucks

by Jim Manders, publisher

The multi-event Canadian Longboard Open, Aug. 18-21, was picked in a random drawing to receive $200 in added money from Lagging 4s magazine. The money represents 25 percent of advertising revenue in the magazine.

The tournament will be held at the Burnaby Legion, near Vancouver, British Columbia.

Tournament organizer Gordie Smith said the award, which will be used for one event, comes at a time when Legion volunteers are attempting to raise money to add to tournament events as a way of increasing participation.

"What a great surprise to our tournament," Smith said when notified of the award.

Tournaments listed in Lagging4s magazine were eligible for the prize.

Lagging4s publisher Jim Manders recalls another time when a Canadian Legion benefitted from a drawing he'd been involved with.

Manders said:

It was the early 1990s and the Evergreen Shuffleboard Association was in its first year. The membership had voted to award its annual tournament to one of the sponsors.

"The drawing was held at the Grand Masters Tournament at Quilcene and a Canadian Legion in downtown Victoria won the honor.

"Smith, representing the Canadian Legion, had run late that day and didn't know of the drawing till arrived at the Whistling Oyster with a surprise from that Legion.

"What ESA leaders didn't know was that Legion leaders had generously decided to offer $1,000 to host the tournament so it turned out to be lucky that they'd been drawn from the hat.

"From that time on the ESA tournament was awarded to the sponsor with the highest bid. The highest bid ever came from Cheri-Frank Schnarrs of Frankie's in the Olympia area when they put up $2,000 to host the millenium event in 2000.
